Premessa

The involvement of the Sardinia Region on projects with international partnerships aims, through the activation of specific Community economic resources, to enhance the competitiveness of the Mediterranean regions, helping to find solutions, lines of action and good practices to overcome the gap development. These in fact have to face some common challenges including economic development, the environment and energy. The role, therefore, of the Governance of Renewable Energy in regions of space MED is crucial: the development of RE in fact requires better coordination and promotion of regional energy policies. In this perspective, the approach and the tools of the project ENERMED provide a solid basis for the development and coordination of regional policies on RE. The initiative is part of the MED program 2007/2013 - ENERMED Mediterranean Renewable Energy, a project of the European Territorial Cooperation, of which the Agency Laore is the leader and that includes Croatia, France, Greece, Italy, Slovenia and Spain. The objective of this project is to improve the quality of regional policies in support of renewable energy, and consequently to improve the social, environmental, economic and landscaped of European projects on Renewable Energy.
